General Membership Meeting: Announcement and Reminder October General Meeting

The annual Business Meeting with elections and appointments will be held, as usual, in October and in

New Jersey. The precise date and site will be announced later.

We are Hoping to have a big Fall Reunion in 2009 with speakers and activities to celebrate Henry Hudson's historic voyage for the Dutch East India Co. and founding of Albany in 1609 – both 400 years ago. Planning has already begun.

Henry was English, not Dutch; but England refused to support his ideas of a northern sea route to China. The Dutch East India Co. welcomed him warmly and sponsored his journey by providing the Half Maen, an 80-ton vessel, plus a crew of 20 sailors. This ship has been reconstructed and tours the US east coast frequently, and it has even cruised the Great Lakes.

Attracted by the fur trade after 1609 waves of Dutch came to this nieuw wereld and founded the city of Nieuw Amsterdam. A major result was Dutch settlements up and down the East coast from Fort Orange (Albany), NY to eastern Pennsylvania, east through Connecticut, south through New Jersey and all of Delaware and, of course, the entire state of NY.

The Dutch accepted every religion at home and abroad, so there were religious refugees in all Dutch areas – especially Huguenots and German Reformed Church members. Language among these was not a problem, since German and Dutch are quite similar and many of the Huguenots had already fled to Holland or was living in Flemish-speaking border areas.

The Van Voorhees family were late-comers (not arriving until 1660); however, Steven's descendants married into Dutch and Huguenot families already here – some coming almost as early as Henry Hudson and many arriving from 1610 to 1630. If we research the earliest Van Voorhees wives, we will find French and German names popping up repeatedly along with the Dutch ones.

Annual DUES: Still Only $10.00!! (Life Members and other options on Dues Form, p. 22)

If you check, you will find that many organizations similar to ours have dues of $25.00 or more. We have kept ours to a minimum to encourage maximum family membership. Your dues support continuing genealogical research, storage and handling of our books, and possibility of future CDs and books. Our bills come in every month. The 2008 dues were due on Jan. 1, 2008. To determine your dues status, please check the 1st line of your mailing label. If the mailing label does not say 2008 or Life, we have made a mistake or your dues for 2008 have not been paid. Your dues are deductible for Federal Income Tax purposes. Please make checks payable to The Van Voorhees Association. Please send your dues to:

Notes from the Genealogy Committee by Bob Voorhees

Great News! Flo Christoph will continue as the Van Voorhees genealogist for another year (2008) and hopefully beyond. I believe I'm correct in saying this will be her 15th year as our genealogist. With the able assistance of Judith Van Voorhis, Flo has entered 88,902 names into our Master Genealogist (TMG) database. What a job she has done. I don't think my calculator would count the number of hours she has put in on our behalf. Flo had successful knee replacement surgery Jan. 4, thus she will be mostly out of action for the next 6 weeks or so.

Year 2007 (the 75th anniversary of the founding of the Van Voorhees Association) was a very successful year. With Flo's leadership and hard work, the Genealogy Committee completed The 9th Generation CD. Sales of this CD are running ahead of forecast. We want to thank all on the Committee who had a hand in completing this CD, and especially thank those who have purchased the CD. These dollars will go toward funding additional research.

We are thinking of additional publications but probably not before 2009 or 2010. You might expect us to suggest a new publication titled, The 10th Generation (and the children of the 10th) but this is not the way we are thinking. The problem with the 10th and 11th generations is they include a large number of living people and some would not want their names included. Rather we are thinking of using the 1930 census as the basis for the next publication. Names in the 1930 census are already in the public domain. The 1940 census will be available in 2012 (1940+72 years) so we will need to keep this in mind in our planning. Additionally, the census is the single most important source of information. When we receive information from members or other publications, we always try to cross check with the census. Obviously if we go beyond 1930, we have no census to refer to.

Our next publication will certainly include many updates to the first 9 generations and the Unknowns. Some Unknowns have been resolved since we released the 9th generation CD a few months ago. As our database becomes more and more complete with accurate information, it seems we have a better chance of resolving some of the Unknowns. TMG Version 7 has some new features involving finding duplicate individuals; and, as we learn how to use it, these new features may be helpful.

When we are working hard on a publication (as we did in 2007) the routine entering of new information tends to fall behind. Eventually, we have to freeze the data and work to complete the task. So in 2008 we want to work on updating our database with new information already on hand and with new information as it comes in. Over half of our information comes from our members, so please keep us in mind! We can handle almost any file format, if you want to send us your genealogy file attached to an email. If you're not sure we have your data, please contact me at _____ and I will try to let you know what we have and this will indicate to you what we don't have.

Secondly, we want to work hard on our Unknown Lines. These are lines that we cannot connect to our immigrant ancestor, Steven Coerte Van Voorhees. We currently have over 700 names in our database that are in the Unknown category. As much as possible we want to work together on these, meaning several members of the Genealogy Committee and/or with members at large.

Thirdly, we want to put some effort into flagging out distinct groups of Voorhees. The best way to describe this is with examples. Wouldn't it be fun and interesting to be able to print out a list of all the Voorhees who served in the Revolutionary War, the War of 1812, the Civil War, the First World War, and the 2nd World War? Wouldn't it be fun and interesting to print out all the Voorhees who were Masons .. or doctors .. or lawyers .. or clergy-men? Obviously our database contains a lot of this information, but it is incomplete. Sometimes when we are entering data, we just don't know that a person was a Mason, or he served in the Civil War. New databases are coming available that enable us to cross check our information with the database.

As an example, Ancestry.com recently put on line the entire National Park Service database listing US Civil War veterans. I counted about 800 Civil War Union soldiers with the name Voorhees or one of its derivatives. There are about 75 Civil War Confederate soldiers with the name Voorhees. Mike Apgar has done extensive work on Civil War Voorhees and has a list of about 14 black Union soldiers with the name Voorhees. All of these activities take manpower. We would like to add several new members to our Genealogy Com-mittee. Please contact me if interested. We would particularly like to have someone from California on the Committee. Also we would like to find someone interested in World War 2 history. Because the Van Voorhees Association was going strong during World War 2, we have a lot of original letters and records from this period that would be fun to analyze.

Fourth, TMG recently introduced Version 7 of their software and we will be switching to this new version sometime in 2008. It has some new features which will be handy to have.

Finally, I plan to work with Flo in 2008 and put together a document I will call, "Design Criteria Memorandum." This document will set out all the TMG data entry standards we use. This would be things like how dates and place names are input, what modifications need to be made to which source templates, and many more. I would eventually plan to publish this document in the Nieuwsbrief, as I think it will be of interest to our members. Also when the day comes when Flo and I are not around, the document will be of assistance to those that follow.

There are many changes going on at Ancestry.com, the largest company in genealogy, that are of significance to the industry and to us. Ancestry has created a new corporate name, The Generations Network. They have received a $300,000,000 investment from a venture capital firm and are expanding rapidly outside of the US. They are ramping up aggressively in the US to go after a much larger customer base. They introduced completely new Family Tree Maker genealogy software. They were forced into the completely new because all their programmers had left the company and also because they wanted to make the program more internet friendly and friendlier to other components within Ancestry. As reported earlier, Ancestry has purchased Sorenson, a DNA testing company, and plans to get more involved in DNA.

Since 1999 almost 2 million people have submitted family trees to Ancestry's Online Family Tree System called Ancestry World Tree. After March 2008 this system will no longer be supported and those trees not converted to the new system will be frozen. The new system will be called Ancestry Member Tree System. This new system has a lot of new features including integrated record search, the ability to invite family members and friends to edit and contribute, and GEDCOM import and export.

Ancestry Member Tree System basically eliminates the need to have your own genealogy software and provides software for you on the internet -- a trend much broader than just the genealogy field.

We have no interest in Ancestry Member Tree System because the underlying software is not as feature rich as TMG; however, it may be an appropriate system for a lot of people. We are aware that a number of Master Genealogist users are talking to Wholly Genes Software (maker of TMG) about setting up a network where more than one researcher can edit and contribute to a TMG project. One of the early users of new TMG Version 7 has discovered a mysterious button labeled "Family Data Exchange Options" and users on the newsgroups are wondering what the heck this is. We will be following this new development to see if it is something we should consider.

The National Genealogical Society national conference will be held 14 to 17 May, 2008 in Kansas City, MO. The Federation of Genealogical Societies will hold their national conference 3 to 6 Sept, 2008 in Philadelphia, PA.

Genealogy cruises continue to be profitable for both the software vendors and the cruise lines. The next Legacy Family Tree (Millennia Corp) cruise will be on the Norwegian Jewel departing from London 16 July, 2008 and arriving back in London 28 July, 2008. This cruise will schedule stops at Copenhagen, Berlin, St. Petersburg, Tallinn, and Stockholm. The next Roots-Magic cruise will be the Mexican Riviera (Cabo San Lucas, Mazatlan, and Puerto Vallarta, Mexico) from Sept 28 to Oct 5, 2008. The Master Genealogist (Wholly Genes Software) cruise aboard the Caribbean Princess will depart Brooklyn 26 Oct 2008 and arrive in San Juan, Puerto Rico Sun 2 Nov, 2008. This cruise visits St. Kitts, West Indies; Antigua, West Indies; and St. Thomas, US Virgin Islands. Note it is a repositioning cruise which does not start and end in the same place. Another genealogy cruise sponsored by Fly Away Travel (not a software company) is on Royal Caribbean's newest ship, Liberty of the Seas. This cruise starts in Miami, FL on Sat. 25 Oct 2008 and returns to Miami Sat 1 Nov 2008. This cruise stops at San Juan, Puerto Rico, Philipsburg, St. Maarten, and Labadee, Haiti. Note that this cruise is Saturday to Saturday.

Status of Voorhees Surname DNA Project

by Bob Voorhees

Our project continues to add people. We currently have a total of 13 Voorhees tested. In the fall 2007 Nieuwsbrief we reported 7 people tested so we have added 6 more or an 86% increase. All 13 people match perfectly on 12 markers. Ten people tested at 25 markers: 7 of these match all 25; 2 of them match on 24; and 1 matches on 23. Eight people tested at 37 markers: 7 match on 36 markers and 1 matches on 33 markers.

This last person, matching 33 of 37 markers, is most interesting. Thirty-three of 37 markers indicate a 99% chance that we share a common ancestor. Of note here is that his name is not Voorhees and nothing close to Voorhees. I'm not going to mention his name in the interest of privacy, but his family has been in the US for a number of generations. We have been in touch with this family member. He had a relative, now deceased, who commissioned some research in the Netherlands on his family name. It, in fact, shows that in the 15th and 16th centuries the family name was Voorhees or something close to Voorhees and at some point along the way it was changed. So this line of people probably descended from the ancestors of our immigrant ancestor, Steven Coerte Van Voorhees. This is the only line I know of in the US that descended from the ancestors of Steven Coerte.

We have a copy of this research and Manning Voorhees is looking into it to see if we can pinpoint the common ancestor. Manning has, for some time, been working on a project to identify ancestors and relatives in the Netherlands from the 16th and 17th centuries. Manning is the right man for this job, since he made publication of the book, Through a Dutch Door, 17th Century Origins of the Van Voorhees Family happen in 1992.

Locating Steven Coerte's ancestors in Holland is extremely complicated. Here is a quote from page xv of our Dutch Door book: The Dutch system of naming children in the late 16th and 17th centuries can be confusing, particularly since the same relatively narrow numbers of names seem to recur. Generally, a son's last name was his father's first *name to which was added s or sen or even sen – all variations found in US Dutch records. Thus, Steven Coerts' son could be Coert Stevens or Stevensen or Stevenszen. This name reversal would be continued in many instances through successive generations. It will be noted that some female names end in je or tje. This diminutive is added to a basic woman's name--e.g., Antje (Ann + tje). See page 747 of our 1-6 Generations book for the article titled "The Stephenson Family Descendants of Steven Lucas". This is in the Appendix which lists Unknowns.*

To further understand the complexity, here is another quote from page 18 of our Dutch Door book: As for the inhabitants of the farms at Hees and their mutual family-ties, there are positive and continuous data only for the first decades of the 17th century onwards. There are two important reasons for this. On the one hand, the accounts of the rentmeester of Dikninge begin in this period. On the other hand, maybe more important, from this time on a patronymicum is consistently used, usually followed by a dwelling place, such as for instance Albert Coerts van Voorhees. 15th and 16th century data mostly lack these additions; consequently, we have to do with a first name and only the addition to/tho/toe/te Hees. This is why making a family genealogy before 1600 is a difficult and risky job. To/tho/toe/te Hees did not always mean a person actually lived there; it could also mean that a person was born at Hees. Jan to Hees in de Weyde, for example, appeared as a tenant of Dikninge between 1568 and about 1590. He was born at Hees (probably Voorhees), but lived at a farm in the parish of Ruinerwold (then called Blydenstede).*

Editor's Note: The definition of patronymic (patronymicum) is a name received from a paternal ancestor; especially, one formed by a prefix as in Fitzgerald (an Irish/English corruption of the French fis, meaning son or son of), son of Gerald, or suffix, as in Johnson (German sohn, Scandinavian sen or ssen), son of John.

Letter from Elias William Van Voorhis to Horatio Nelson Voorhees by Bob Voorhees

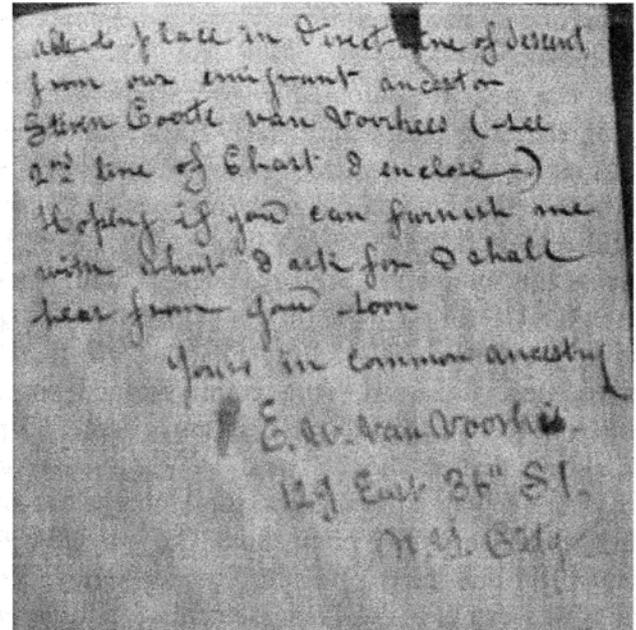

This letter, written by Elias William Van Voorhis (b. 28 May 1844 and d. 21 Sept. 1892) of New York City, was sent to Horatio Nelson Voorhees (b. 5 Jan. 1811 d. Jan. 1888) of Glen, Montgomery Co., NY. In it Elias requested information on Van Voorhees genealogy. Fortunately for us, his handwriting is legible;

but you can see how difficult it is to do research with only handwritten documents. Below is the letter on 1 sheet of paper: Fig. 1 is the front and Fig. 2 the back. Elias published his 725 page book of genealogy of the Voorhees family in 1888

Horatio N. Voorhees Esq
Dear Sir
As you will see by enclosed circular I am writing a history of the Voorhees family and write to ask if you will assist me by furnishing certain names and dates to be used in my work - I have your line of descent back to Holland and will write it out and send it to you if you will send me dates of your father's and mother's births, deaths and marriage, names of all their children with dates of births, deaths and marriages, and who they married down to your generation. I have collected in last five year about 5000 Voorhees names more than half of which I have been

Fascinating Tidbits about Drenthe Provincie, De Nederlands by Marilyn Van Voorhis Voshall

Did you know that the famous painter, Vincent Van Gogh, spent a few months in Drenthe in 1883? He was so emotionally affected that he said, "Drenthe is so beautiful. It draws me and pleases me so very much that it would be better if I had never seen it." Today the Ruinen/Hees area is a vacation spot for European tourists, who come by the busload.

Peat bogs in the Ruinen/Hees area had their last cutting in 1992. Bog mummies were found there.

The towns all have a brink (open square with trees) in the center. In olden times this was often a pasture as well as gathering place for markets and street fairs, etc. Just off the brink, Ruinen has a lovely House Museum (including a barn) with costumed guides. It is well worth seeing, as it gives one a good picture of how our ancestors lived.

Drenthe is home to quite a number of hunebedden (gigantic megalithic tombs). These are formed by several upright rocks covered by a large cap-stone. There are so many that a map of their locations can be purchased by tourists.

The rentmeester, who collected rent for the Hees farms, was located in the Dwingeloo monastery - next to Ruinen then, but a part of it now.

Dwingelderveld, a national park in this area, has numerous camp sites; but, beware! There are signs (in Dutch only!) warning about poisonous snakes.

Favorite colors used in church interiors, including our ancestral Ruinen church, are dark green and maroon. These are the colors I chose for my 50th wedding anniversary party in 2006.

Biography of Rev. C.E. Van Voorhis
(originally prepared by Charles E. Van Voorhis)
submitted by Bruce Van Voorhis

This is an account of the life of Rev. C. E. Van Voorhis, as written by his close friend and fellow pastor, Dr. Stephen N. Cook, in February, 1881, and handed on by his son, Rev. Scott Cook to Rev. W. D. Van Voorhis, my father, in January, 1934.

Charles Edward Van Voorhis, 3rd son of Samuel and Sarah Myers Van Voorhis, was born October 11, 1809 in Dutchess County, NY. His parents moved to Washington County, PA near Williamsport in 1814 where they remained until 1823, when the family moved to Crawford County, OH, settling about seven miles east of Bucyrus.

Their Crawford County home was in the midst of a wilderness with only one house between the Van Voorhis cabin and the little city of Bucyrus, which contained only a few cabins. Samuel, father of the subject of this sketch, and his older son had preceded the family and had erected a cabin of the rudest sort. When the rest of the family arrived, the hut had only a dirt floor and was but partially covered. A winter of great severity followed and the reader can easily imagine the sufferings of a family in such circumstances among strangers and without the means to procure the most ordinary comforts.

In this home during the six following years Brother Van Voorhis grew to manhood with no religious training except that his father, who was reared by his maternal grandparents under Dutch-Reformed and Presbyterian influences, required his children to observe "The Sabbath" by reading the Bible and quietly deporting themselves. He had not heard a sermon or been at a religious meeting during all these six years. Yet no immoralities had developed excepting "his love for the fiddle and the dance which was their only social amusement." Their neighbors spent their Sundays in hunting and in other sports, and drunkenness was a common vice.

In 1830 John Secrest preached at the home of Oliver Jones on the subject of "The Conversion of the Eunuch." This was the first sermon that Brother Van had the privilege of listening to, and he remarked to his comrades on the way home, "If there is any truth in the New Testament, these fellows have it." Secrest and others preached here occasionally until June of 1831, when Brother Van, then age 22, confessed his Master, and was baptized -- the first of his family. They all followed him soon after.

Brother J. H. Jones, John Kline and other pioneers came out about the same time, and a congregation called Whetstone Church was set in order that summer. They were visited by Secrest, N. J. Mitchel, John Sargent, J. Miller and J. Morris.

On July 9th, 1832, Brother Van joined his fortunes for life with Miss Susan Jones, daughter of Daniel and Catherine Jones. This marriage was a fortunate one, as sister Van was a most zealous Disciple, a faithful wife and mother, and an able helpmeet in the Lord in all Brother Van's arduous labors in the gospel. At the time of their marriage they had, as their joint capital with which to begin life, two good characters, four willing and industrious hands and $1.25 in money, $0.75 of which was expended in securing a license, and $0.50 as a reward to Brother Secrest for performing the sacred rites of matrimony. The fruits of this marriage were 8 sons and 3 daughters. The first child (Ellen) died at the age of 14 months. The remaining 10 grew into adulthood and all are "now" living except Lemert who died on Dec. 24th, 1870. On Sept. 19th, 1870, Brother Van was called upon to mourn the loss of his faithful wife of 38 years. Her qualifications for the very responsible position of a preacher's wife were surely more than ordinary, since Brother Van was away from home for much of the time in his labors in the field, and to his wife was entrusted the training of the family and management of the home. I cannot convey to the reader a better idea of her Christian witness than by saying that these 10 children, 8 boys and 2 girls, all became Christians before they were 17 years old, and throughout their lives were active in good works in the various congregations where their lots were cast. This, in connection with the fact that four of the sons passed through the terrible ordeal of temptation of army life in the war of the Rebellion, shows the result of family training, and proves false an old saying: "Preachers' children are always bad children."

During the winter of 1833-34, Brother Van began to exercise his gifts as a public speaker. Besieged by the brethren of the day and by the necessities of the little, weak Whetstone congregation to have someone lead and instruct them, it was not long before his abilities became known abroad, and calls from other neighborhoods for the bread of life put Brother Van permanently at work. There was no trouble in those days in finding a field, for the world was the field, and thousands were desirous of knowing more about the sect (Disciples of Christ) which was everywhere spoken against. Brother Van visited many places in Crawford, Richland and Knox counties. He was not much concerned about his salary, for it was not until he had labored for three years, and could count his converts to the Gospel by the scores, that he received from the hands of a Brother Hull his first money for preaching. ("Brother Hull took grandfather one day back behind the church where the former was the preacher. He asked him if he had come to the place in his preaching where he could accept money without its engendering pride. Grandfather assured him that he was conscious of having attained that degree of divine grace, whereupon Brother Hull soberly handed him 95 cents." ... Rev. W. D. Van Voorhis) About this time he also received five bushels of wheat that was too smutty to be used. No one who has not had experience in the hardships and privations of pioneer preaching of those days can form any estimate of the labors, the sacrifices, the hardships that were then the common lot of the preachers. They went forth in the cause without purse or script, or even promise. Clad in their homespun and with no book but the Bible from which to draw their convincing sermons, they went to their task. There could be but one motive attributed to these men by both friends and enemies, viz. sincerity and love of truth. This brought converts into the church wherever the faith was proclaimed.

Brother Van labored in this section of the country until 1837, when he moved to Wayne County (near Millwood) to labor in company with James Porter in a large territory (composed the counties of Wayne, Richland, Stark and Knox) at a salary of $155 for the first year, and $300 after this, with some donations. ("No wonder that grandfather thought $600 a year was too much for me to receive as a salary from the Weston Church after I graduated from Hiram in 1896. I really think as I look back upon it, that he was right in the matter." ... Rev. W. D. Van Voorhis) He labored 3-4 years, and very many became obedient to the faith, and the cause was planted in many places which in after years became the scenes of strong congregations. Then there was but one meeting house belonging to the Disciples of Christ in all that section. So, in the summer preaching was done in the woods and in the barns, and in winter in school houses and by firesides or wherever the people could be called together. It was then generally the custom to baptize immediately after people presented themselves. Often it was "the same hour of the night."

From Wayne County Brother Van moved with his family in 1840 to Columbiana County (between Salem and New Lisbon) where he was engaged to work for a cooperation of Columbian churches at a salary of $300 a year. His labors were very much praised, and great success attended his meetings everywhere. These churches were at peace among themselves, and all contended earnestly for the faith and for all delivered to the saints. His family had so increased that it was only with strictest economy (by living in the cheapest manner possible) that he was able to provide for them. He avoided living in towns and villages in order to diminish his expenses, and keep his boys from bad associations.

From Columbiana County he moved to Belmont County where he labored for a cooperation of congregations of that section. His labors here were great. He traveled almost always on horseback. His stay in one place was mostly for two or three days, and his visits would be arranged on a circuit requiring five or six weeks to complete. His co-laborers during these years were John Reed, John Sargent, James Porter, Jonas Hartzel, John Henry, Cyrus Bosworth, Dr. W. H. Belding, Eli Regal, George Powell, A. B. Green, Wesley Lamphere, A. S. and William Hayden, John and Thomas Rigdon, Stephen Cook, A. Grayham, William Jackson, and many others. With many of these he was intimately associated in his ministry in eastern Ohio. He, in company with John Henry, held debates with Lutheran and Presbyterian ministers.

In the spring of 1846 he moved to Knox County and purchased a farm northeast of Bladensburg where he has since (1881) resided. His labors were now immense, since it combined continual preaching and looking after the work of a large farm. The churches which enjoyed the most of his labors were his own home church in Dennis (outside of Bladensburg), Millwood, Union Hill, Yankee Ridge, Oxford, Center Village, Pleasant Grove and Milford. ("My grandfather still continued to minister to the churches of Belmont County up into the 80's. I can remember his trips down there." ... Rev. W. D. Van Voorhis) In these churches he labored from 1-5 years and also held many meetings in different parts of the county - in fact, throughout the whole state of Ohio.

Addendum to the Biography of Rev. C.E. Van Voorhis
by Marilyn Van Voorhis Voshall

In a lengthy phone conversation, Bruce and I determined that we are 4th cousins – descendants of Rev. Charles E. Van Voorhis. We had much to share about the Ohio Van Voorhis clan. I started to edit the biography and then realized there was more history than could be inserted -- thus this article.

Charles' grandfather is Capt. Daniel Van Voorhies, who married his 2nd cousin, Sarah Voorhees Brett (no children by her 1st marriage). Sarah was baptized in the Dutch Reformed Church in Fishkill, NY – a church with several founders including her grandfather, Johannes Coerte Van Voorhees. They had 2 children before she died at the age of 31. It is thought that she was buried on her grandfather Johannes' farm in the Van Voorhees Cemetery. This cemetery no longer exists; but the remaining stones (no bones or bodies found) were placed in the churchyard of the Fishkill Dutch Reformed Church. Her stone is next to that of Johannes and his wife, Barbara Van Dyke/Dycke Van Voorhees.

When Sarah died, Samuel was only 3 and his sister, Sarah, barely 6 weeks old. Daniel left the children to be raised by Sarah's parents, "Court Voorhees" and his wife, "Catharyna Vilken" (spellings given in the records of the Dutch Reformed Church in Fishkill, NY). Capt. Daniel remarried, had 4 more children, and his 2nd wife died at the age of 33. He married a 3rd time, had 2 more children and this wife lived to the age of 78.

Samuel, after marriage, moved near his father in Washington Co., PA. He was still there when Daniel died on Feb. 21, 1819 at the age of 80. In Daniel's Will, probated Apr. 21, 1819, Samuel received $300 - a lot of money in those days. No doubt it financed his trek west to Bucyrus, Ohio. As previously stated, Samuel was a pioneer with ordeals beyond any modern tent-camping trip. Samuel's wife, Sarah Myer (several spellings in records at Fishkill, NY), died on Sept. 20, 1848 at the age of 64. Samuel died on Feb. 24, 1857 at the age of 82. Both are buried in Whetstone Cemetery, Bucyrus, Crawford Co., OH. Probably Samuel spent his last years living with his son, Isaac, on Isaac's farm. It is unclear whether this was originally Samuel's farm. In any case, this farm was bisected by a creek. Actually, only 1 small corner of it was cut off from the rest. For many years this corner was probably used as a wood-lot. Later Isaac donated it to become Whetstone Cemetery. When I finally found it a few years ago, I could not locate the graves of either Sarah or Samuel. Eventually I noticed a broken tombstone in the weeds just over the bank going down to the stream. It was Samuel's. I retrieved it and leaned the 2 pieces against a tree. I never could find Sarah's stone. It was obvious that the upper bank had caved in and fallen down the steep embankment. Probably Sarah and Samuel were buried on the edge of this bank. Two years later I revisited the site and Samuel's broken stone was exactly where I had placed it. Whetstone Cemetery is well cared for, but no one knows exactly who does this. There are several Van Voorhis stones as well as those with other names. Locals in Bucyrus say that relatives take turns mowing the grass, etc. Our thanks to them!

Rev. Charles E. Van Voorhis and his wife, Susan (Jones), had their first child die early; however, their 10th, also a daughter, was also given the name Ellen - a common practice used for several centuries. There were 12 children (counting the 1st Ellen who died in infancy); but my father was not sure if #12, Tefrona (b. Jan. 14, 1860), was adopted or not. (Sarah was 47 when Tefrona was born.) Charles did marry (after 1870 when Susan died) a 2nd wife, Ellen Ferguson; but they had no children together. She died July 9, 1896 and he died Dec. 12, 1896 (age 87) at his farm home in Bladensburg, OH. He is buried in the Dennis Church Cemetery in Jackson Twp., Knox Co., OH -- just across a dirt lane from the front doors of his beloved church. Both wives are buried with him and all 3 names are on one stone pillar. In keeping with customs of the Disciples of Christ, his stone reads Elder Charles E. Van Voorhis. (Officially in this denomination, ordained elders can teach, give communion, preach, baptize and perform marriages.)

My great-grandpa, William Linas (5th child of Rev. C.E. Van Voorhis) was minister of the Martinsburg Disciple church (4 miles west of Bladensburg); and William's son, James E., was a deacon in the Disciple church in Ravenna, OH. James' son, Merrill (my father), was ordained a life-time elder in the Disciple church, but by then (late 1940s onward) elders normally function as pastors only in emergencies.

Cemeteries in Bladensburg, Dennis and Martinsburg have many Van Voorhis names. The next page (courtesy of Dr. Roy Voshall) has photos of several family tombstones, Rev. C. E. Van Voorhis' Dennis Church, and the Disciple church in Martinsburg, OH.

Our Cousins, the Schencks, have 2 Farm Houses in the Brooklyn Museum by Fredrick V. Bonner

In early 2007, I noticed some news items saying the Period Room Exhibits and the Schenck Houses were closed for renovation. The name Schenck, pronounced Skenk,* rang a bell. I consulted my Van Voorhees family records and, sure enough, found Hendrick Van Voorhees (a great grandson of our progenitor, Stephen Coertse Van Voorhees) married circa 1734 Sara Schenck. Sara's parents were Jan Rolofse Schenck (1670-1753) and Sara Willemse Van Kouwenhoven (1674-1761). Both were born in the Flatlands section of Brooklyn called Nieuw Amersfoort.

Jan Schenck's mother was Neeltje Garretse Van Couwenhoven (1520-1704) who, I suspect, was a brother to Jan Martense Schenck, builder of the older Schenck House in the Mill Basin neighborhood of Flatlands in Brooklyn. I presume the Van Voorhees farm was within walking distance to the Schenck house and that all of these Dutch settlers attended the Flatland Dutch Reformed Church (3931 Kings Highway) established in 1663 by order of Peter Stuyvesant.

In late July 2007, my wife and I were staying in the Hotel Beacon (W. 75th on Broadway) when we learned the Period Room Exhibits and the Schenck Houses in the Brooklyn Museum had reopened. The next morning, we went to the W. 75th Street subway station, boarded the #2 Broadway Express at 9:25 and arrived at the Brooklyn Museum Station at 10:02. Great timing because the museum opened at 10:00 AM (Hours for the museum are Wed.-Fri., 10 AM - 5 PM; Sat. - Sun., 11 AM - 6 PM).

The Brooklyn Museum is one of the largest art museums in the world. As you emerge from the subway station (1 of the cleanest in the city!), you see a handsome Beaux-Arts building fronted by a very avant-garde entrance pavilion and public plaza. Started in 1897 with many later additions, the original design was by McKim, Meade and White.

The Brooklyn Botanical Gardens is to the right of the museum and Prospect Park surrounds both institutions. The museum entrance-fee is $4 for seniors (compared to $20 at the Metropolitan Art Museum in Manhattan) and your sight lines are not blocked by hordes of summer tourists.

We were directed to 4th floor of the museum for the Schenck Houses. As you approach the two houses, the older one (built in 1676) appears to be younger, because the exterior consists of clapboard siding that has been freshly painted in the ancient barn-red color. I'm sure this was meticulously researched.

The 1676 Schenck House is basically two rooms: the larger south room contains the kitchen and main living area with a large dining table, a desk and many cupboards. There is a large open Dutch hearth for cooking and warmth. All floors are bare wood, kept clean by scrubbing with white sand. The smaller north room features built-in bunk beds with backs to the fireplace for warmth. There is a huge KAST, the classic Dutch wardrobe.

The newer Schenck House, built in 1775 in the Canarsie section of Brooklyn by Nicholas Schenck (one of Jan Martense Schenck's grandsons) appears to be older because the exterior is covered with very old, very dark shingles -- possibly an influence from the New Englanders who settled eastern Long Island. As you enter this house from a Dutch doorway into a central hallway, you quickly see what a difference a century makes in terms of affluence and material possessions. The 1775 Schenck House has four main rooms off the central hallway: a large dining room with sideboards and grandfather clock; a parlor with fine furniture and a rug; a bed chamber featuring a four-poster bed and fancy dressing table; a second bed chamber with a huge KAST. The house has an unfinished second floor (closed to the public) that probably provided a storage area and additional sleeping spaces for children and servants.

These two houses provide a strong visual impression of how our Dutch ancestors lived their daily lives in the 1600s and 1700s in Brooklyn. I urge all Van Voorhees cousins to find the time and make the trek to the Brooklyn Museum.

Following our tour of the Schenck Houses, we had time left to visit the wonderful Period Rooms, the Harry Luce Center for American Art, the Dinner Party by Judy Chicago in the Center for Feminist Art and Beaux-Arts Court surrounded by 700 Years of European Paintings. Then we boarded the #3 Broadway Express at 12:17 and 26 minutes later arrived at the Macy's Station at W. 34th St. and 7th Avenue. We walked through Macy's and crossed over to 6th Ave. and then two blocks north to W. 36th St. and turned right to Keens Steakhouse at 72 W. 36th St. Formerly called Keen's English Chop House, it was established in 1878 as a man's pipe-smoking club. That's why you will see 88,000...yes, 88,000...clay pipes on the ceiling. My wife and I prefer the middle room, once called the Clam Bar, for our annual summer luncheon of steak tartare (1 portion for 2), 3-leaf green salad, French fries and a wonderful bottle of Beaujolais. What a rewarding day!

Editor's Notes

* Skenk is the English pronunciation of Schenck. Dutch would be Schkenck. This schk for sch is distinctly Dutch, not German or any other language, and is so difficult to pronounce that it was used in WWII to identify non-Dutch 'spies.'

 Kast means cupboard, press, or closet. It is the shortened version of kleerkast (pronounced clare-cast) meaning wardrobe, clothespress, or cupboard. Kleer means clothes.

In 1811 at the age of 47, he became a member of the Washington Benevolent Society. James Voorhees and Samuel Voorhees were two of Peter's three sons. James Leslie Voorhees (born 6 Aug 1794 in Town of Glen, Montgomery Co., NY and died 19 Dec 1865 in Plainville, Town of Lysander, Montgomery Co., NY) was 17 years old in 1811. Dr. Samuel L. Dr. Stephen Reynolds practiced medicine in Minaville, Town of Florida, Montgomery Co., NY for 42 years before retiring to Schenectady, NY. Dr. Samuel Voorhees practiced medicine in Amsterdam, NY for more than 40 years. He also invested in real estate which is why there is a Voorhees Street in Amsterdam. Voorhees St. is just a few blocks from the boyhood home of Kirk Douglas, whose real name was Issur Danielovitch .

There is no doubt of the closeness of the Voorhees and Reynolds families (Fig. 9, the Voorhees-- Reynolds memorial at Green Hill Cemetery, Amsterdam, NY). Note the long grass in Fig. 9. Just before this photo was taken the cemetery caretaker ran off with all the money and the cemetery upkeep suffered. Both Samuel L. Voorhees and Marcus T. Reynolds attended Union College in Schenectady, NY. Marcus Tullius became a very successful lawyer in Johnstown and Albany NY, and was also a railroad President for many years. Samuel Voorhees came to Minaville and lived with and studied medicine under Dr Stephen Reynolds. He became a doctor and married Betsey Reynolds on 24 April 1811.

Dr. Stephen Reynolds (born 1 Sept 1765 in Amenia, Dutchess Co., NY) died 8 July 1833 in Amsterdam, NY. Lydia Bartlett Reynolds (born in Lebanon, New London Co., CT) died 27 Aug 1843 in Amsterdam, NY. They were married 29 Oct 1787 at Warrensburg, Town of Florida, Montgomery Co., NY. Betsey Reynolds (born 9 Dec 1790 in Minaville, Town of Florida, Montgomery Co., NY) died 8 Feb 1858 in Amsterdam, NY. Marcus Tullius Reynolds (born 29 Dec 1788 in Minaville, Town of Florida, Montgomery Co., NY and died 11 July 1864 in Albany, NY) is buried in Albany Rural Cemetery.

A few words of background on the Reynolds family: John Reynolds immigrated to Watertown, Middlesex Co., MA from London, England in 1634. The Reynolds family Association was formed in 1892. This Association adopted the coat of arms found on the tombstone (Fig. 10) in the old cemetery in Bristol, RI. I have included it in this article because I think it is particularly attractive.

The Federalist Party was an American political party in the period 1792 to 1816. The Federalists controlled the federal government until 1801. The party was formed by Alexander Hamilton who, during George Washington's first term, built a network of supporters for his fiscal policies. These supporters grew into the Federalist Party, which wanted a fiscally sound and strong nationalistic government.

The Democratic-Republican Party, also known as the Republican Party (not related to the present-day Republican Party), was founded in 1792 by Thomas Jefferson and James Madison. It became the dominant political party until the 1820's when it split into competing factions, one of which became the modern-day Democratic Party. Its members identified the party as the Republicans, Jeffersonians, Democrats, or combinations of these such as the Jeffersonian Republicans.

Thomas Jefferson was President of the US from March 4, 1801 to March 4, 1809. Historians call the period of 1800-1816 the Jeffersonian era. During the early part of this period, the Federalist Party lacked organization and came close to extinction.

I had some difficulty getting information on the Washington Benevolent Society. However, I hit pay dirt in David Hackett Fischer's book: The Revolution of American Conservatism, The Federalist Party in the Era of Jeffersonian Democracy. Chapter 6 in this book is titled "Federalists and the 'French System of Fraternity': The Birth of the Washington Benevolent Societies."

Few pro-Federalist Washington Associations are known to have appeared before 1808. Early in 1808 a group of young men in New York City decided to found a fraternal order which would combine the mummery of the Tammany Societies, the benevolent activities of the Hibernian Provident Society, and the partisan political enthusiasm of young Federalists. Tammany and Hibernian were Jeffersonian societies. On Feb 22, 1809 the Society held its first public meeting and it was an instant success. The Washington Benevolent Society idea spread rapidly from New York City into western New York State, and eastward to Vermont, Connecticut, and western Massachusetts. By 1810 it had reached Maryland and Rhode Island and by 1812, New Hampshire, eastern Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Ohio. A New England Republican complained that Washington Societies were "sprouting up like mushrooms in the shade." The dignified portions of meetings were held in churches and meeting houses, and the frivolous dinners in taverns; but as the societies caught on, many of them built their own meeting places. The first of them, possibly the first building ever erected in America for partisan purposes, was Washington Hall on Broadway in New York City, with its cornerstone laid on Washington's birthday, 1809, and the structure completed in 1812 (Fig. 11).

Fig. 12 is a picture of George Maxwell Voorhees, son of Dr. Samuel Voorhees and Captain of Company D, 93rd New York State Volunteers during the Civil War. He was born 16 Mar 1826 in Amsterdam, Montgomery Co., NY and died there 14 Sept. 1909. This photo was taken at the home-stead on Main St in Amsterdam about 1908. His dog's name was Hector. We believe this picture of George Washington (on the wall behind George Maxwell)

now hangs at Fort Johnson. The War of 1812 was especially unpopular in

New England and among the Federalists. At least 3 New England states refused to let their militia join in the war. Dr. Samuel Voorhees served as a surgeon in the War of 1812. Peter Voorhees did not serve in the War of 1812 even though he was a Captain in the New York State militia. Late in 1812 Peter Voorhees, his 2nd wife Sally, and son James Leslie Voorhees moved to Onondaga County, NY and purchased land. We don't really know why they moved; however, economic opportunity was surely one reason. If the War of 1812 had anything to do with it, we don't know.

The Voorhees and the Reynolds of Montgomery Co were staunch Federalists. Clearly they were interested in politics. Peter Voorhees was a member of the New York State Assembly during the 22nd Session (August 1798 and Jan thru April 1799). James Leslie Voorhees ran for the Assembly in Figure 12 George Maxwell Voorhees 1832 on the Anti-Masonic ticket and lost; however, he was elected to the New York State Assembly in 1838.

This is the story of a forgotten colony and the Dutch, and how they shaped the world – written in a very easy manner. A must-read if one does not plan on reading further (ibid. the next page for a brief review of this book).

Smolenyak, Megan Smolenyak and Ann Taylor. Trace Your Roots with DNA. Royale, 2004. While this book does not discuss Dutch and early Colonial life in America, it provides an excellent discussion about new genetic testing that genealogists and family historians are widely embracing to verify traditional genealogical conclusions and, in some cases, to show the way through genealogical brick walls.

Spier, Peter. The Legend of New Amsterdam. Garden City: Doubleday, 1979. A children's book in full color on every page, it includes a map of New Amsterdam in 1660. This is the year that Steven Coerts van Voorhees arrived. New Amsterdam had some 300 buildings and nearly 1,500 residents in 1660.

The author is a key personality in Mr. Shorto's book, listed above.

Keskachauge, which was spelled in slightly different ways, was the Indian name for Nieuw Amersfoort, which became Flatlands, where Steven Coerts van Voorhees and many other settlers from the Netherlands lived, farmed and transacted their affairs. There are many references to the Voorhees Family and other Dutch families of interest to researchers of family history. If you obtain the CD, when using the search function first enter Voorhees or Voorhies and omit given and patronymic names; these latter names were not spelled in a consistent manner by our ancestors. The CD includes a detailed map of the Three Flats of Amersfoort, showing a relatively large plat labeled Voorhees and another Voorhees house, along with other Dutch-named spots of the era.

The Island at the Center of the World by Russell Shorto Book Review by Bob Voorhees

If you have not read this book you should consider reading it. Island is among the best books ever written about New Amsterdam, the Dutch settlement on Manhattan that became New York City. As David Van Voorhis Wood pointed out to me, this book states that Annetje Rapelje, who married Cornelis Coerte Van Voorhees (grandson of Steven Coerte Van Voorhees) was descended from the first Dutch child to be born in New Amsterdam. She was Sarah Rapalje born 9 June 1625 (see page 41 of Island).

Editor's Note

According to Huguenot Society Records, Sarah Joris Rapalje (the first of 11 children of Joris Jansen/Janszen Rapalje and his wife, Catalyntje Jeronimus Trico/Triko) was born 9 June 1625 (as stated) in Fort Orange (now Albany), NY -- the first white child born there. She had a total of 14 children (8 by her first husband, Hans Hanssen Bergen from Norway, and 6 by her second husband, Teunis Gisbertsen/Gysberts Bogaert/Bogart).

Annetje Rapelje was the 5th child of Daniel Joriszen Rapalje and his wife, Sarah Abramsz Clok (Clok/Cloq/Klok/Kloc). Daniel (the 11th child of Joris Janszen Rapalje and his wife, Catalyntje Jeronimus Trico/Triko) was the brother of Sarah Joris Rapalje; thus Sarah is the aunt of Annetje. Annetje, baptized at the Dutch Reform Church of Brooklyn, NY on 17 March 1681, married Cornelis Coerte Van Voorhees circa 1696.

In dealing with hand-written records it is very easy to misread some of it and get other parts mixed up! As a descendant of Cornelis and Annetje, I've done considerable research on many females in my ancestry; and I think the Huguenot Society has meticulous records that can be trusted.

Would I read the book if given a chance?
Absolutely Yes!
